A mighty wind

Hailstorm. While 'Tobans were grateful for the moisture, massive winds did more harm than good

A storm that blew through southern Manitoba produced 150 km/h winds and toonie-sized hail Sunday evening.

The larger hail was spotted in the Rural Municipality of Cartier and in several Winnipeg neighbourhoods, including Charleswood and St. James, as the storm blew through.

Twitter users were blaming a tornado for flattening a home near St. Laurent. However, Brad Vrolijk, meteorologist with Environment Canada, said the damage was more likely caused by plow winds.

"Plow winds are straight-line winds that travel, well, in a straight line," said Vrolijk.

While winds at Winnipeg Airport reached 98 km/h, wind gusts in St. Laurent reached 150 km/h.

"That would definitely do considerable damage," said Vrolijk.

Vrolijk did confirm hail west of Winnipeg was up to golf-ball-sized, and up to loonie-sized in Winnipeg.

Residents living on McIvor Road said a funnel cloud was responsible for downing trees on the streets and spreading debris, including shingles, everywhere. Vrolijk said people often mistake a cloud formation called scud clouds for funnel clouds, which are low-level clouds that are sucked back upwards into the storm.

Trees were felled all over Winnipeg, especially in the South Osborne area. Several homes and cars were damaged by toppled trees as well.

Manitoba Hydro confirmed power outages all over southern Manitoba, Selkirk and in Fort Garry, Lindenwoods, River East and St. Boniface, all due to the storm.

Winnipeg police asked motorists to use caution as traffic lights were out all over the city. ELISHA DACEY/METRO

Inquiry to continue despite calls to shut it down

The inquiry into a Manitoba judge whose nude photos were posted on the Internet will continue.

A Canadian Judicial Council committee rejected calls from lawyer Sheila Block for the hearing to be shut down on the grounds it was biased against her client, Justice Lori Douglas.

Block was upset over the way the lawyer who represents the inquiry committee questioned some witnesses. She called it "aggressive" and "withering" and she asked for the committee to stand down and for the inquiry to be terminated.

The chairwoman of the inquiry committee, Justice Catherine Fraser, defended the questioning.

"By definition, an inquiry ... is a search for the truth. We are bound to pursue it," Fraser said.

The inquiry has been examining allegations that Douglas sexually harassed a man nearly a decade ago and failed to disclose the matter when she was appointed a judge in 2005.

Block was clearly unhappy with the ruling that the inquiry would continue, and hinted she may appeal it.

Her complaint of bias was based on questions Wednesday from George Macintosh, the lawyer who asks questions on behalf of the inquiry committee members. He went after Jack King, Douglas's husband, who testified she never knew what King had done with the naked photos, some of which showed her in bondage gear or performing sex acts.

She said the questions to King were put in "a manner at times savage. It was demeaning. It was sarcastic." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Man deported for criminal record. Gets nine months for coming back to Canada

A South American man who was caught in Canada after being deported has been sentenced to nine months in jail.

Raul Roberto Kalbfleisch pleaded guilty to one count of returning to Canada without authorization in provincial court in Winnipeg on Thursday.

The Canadian Border Services Agency says it charged Kalbfleisch in February after he'd been arrested by RCMP under a different identity.

The border agency says Kalbfleisch was deported in 1995 because of his criminal record, but returned to Canada illegally in 1999.

U of M initiative.
Project provides rebuilt bikes and information for kids

LAUREN PARSONS
winnipeg@metronews.ca

Nine Winnipeg kids were given newly rebuilt bicycles Friday morning, as part of a volunteer initiative from the University of Manitoba's Institute of Transportation Engineers Student Chapter.

The U of M ITE Bike Build Project began in the fall 2011 when Winnipeg Repair Education and Cycling Hub donated 20 broken-down bicycles to the organization — the group of 10 to 15 people has since been rebuilding the bikes in U of M's "bike dungeon," under the guidance of faculty advisor Dr. Jeannette Montufar.

"We wanted to make sure the bikes were going to youths of families who wouldn't necessarily have the means to buy a bike themselves, and we wanted them to be kids who were in the neighbourhood," said Rebecca Peterniak, vice-president of ITE, who said the nine kids selected are from Manitoba Housing apartments in Fort Richmond.

Manitoba Public Insurance sponsored the project with $1,000 for new bike parts and locks, and the Injury Prevention Centre of the Winnipeg Regional Health Authority donated 20 new helmets.

At the workshop, kids were fitted to their bikes — to make sure the seat, handle bars and helmet were all adequate — and learned proper bike maintenance, safe riding skills and how to map out routes.

Each participant received a new bike, helmet, lock, a customized Winnipeg cycling map, a lanyard for the lock key and a water bottle.

Thanks for the lane, but it's still scary to ride along Pembina: Cyclist

Bike path. City begins construction on new cycling lane along Pembina Highway

LAUREN PARSONS
winnipeg@metronews.ca

While a new bike lane on Pembina Highway is welcome, some cyclists say they still have safety concerns.

Construction began last week on the new lane between Bishop Grandin and Chevrier boulevards. It provides a separate space where cyclists can ride beside traffic, buffered by plastic poles, but that's not enough, one cyclist said.

"I would prefer not being on the road at all," said Jason Neufeld, who rides his bicycle from downtown to the University of Manitoba several times a week. He added he'd like to see a lane similar to the path next to the rapid-transit corridor.

"I use the Jubilee overpass to get to Pembina. The lanes on Pembina are poorly marked, and the curb lane between Jubilee and Bishop Grandin is full of potholes, loose rocks and crumbling curbs."

Luis Escobar, manager of transportation for the city, said there is no immediate plan to connect the bike lane to downtown, but the public-works department will be creating a strategic plan over the next year.

"The goal is to provide feasible transportation options for everybody. Right now there are places they might only be able to drive to. We want to give them the feasible choice to drive, walk or cycle."

Construction on the Pembina bike lane is expected to be finished by November.

'Peggers still waiting for parking-meter changeover

City parking meters are being altered to accept the recently issued one- and two-dollar coins, but the changeover will take time, the Winnipeg Parking Authority says.

A city spokesperson said the machines should be operational by the end of summer, but not every machine can be changed overnight.

"We have 600 meters, so it will take a bit of time to get each of them changed," the spokesperson said.

"There are a number of different ways to pay for parking aside from coins: Visa, MasterCard and the smartphone app," she noted.

John Sobkovich was visiting a friend at a downtown apartment on Wednesday night, and the meter would not take his loonie.

"I kept putting it in, and it kept coming out. I went to a convenience store and exchanged the money, but it was very inconvenient," he said. "Honestly, if I was in a rush I probably wouldn't have paid for it."

The WPA says Winnipeggers are responsible for carrying proper change for the meters, or using one of the other methods. There are no IOUs.

"For now, Winnipeggers will still have to remember to carry the old coins for parking," the city spokesperson said.

All vending machines, lottery terminals and other coin-operated machines will have to be modified to read the new coins.

Israel. Romney supports Jerusalem as capital

U.S. presidential candidate Mitt Romney spoke aggressively Sunday about protecting Israel from Iranian nuclear threats and suggested that he was open to breaking with U.S. policy dating to 1967 by moving the United States Embassy to Jerusalem if the Israelis asked.

Israel is the second of three stops on an international trip for Romney intended to burnish his foreign-policy credentials.

Romney's speech was clearly designed not only for Israelis but more importantly it was aimed at appealing to evangelical voters at home and to cut into President Barack Obama's support among American Jews.

While Romney has been highly critical of Obama's policy toward Iran and the presumed threat to Israel, he has offered no specifics about how his policy would be substantially different.

But on the issue of the location of the U.S. Embassy in Israel, which is in Tel Aviv, Romney told CNN that he thought the U.S. Embassy should be moved from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem if the Israelis make that request. The Israelis have repeatedly sought such a move.

The issue has been a major diplomatic headache for the U.S., which has refused to make the shift because it would imply the sanctioning of Israel's incorporation of Arab East Jerusalem.

The U.S. has refused to locate its embassy in Jerusalem out of its effort to be a trusted voice by both sides in efforts to negotiate an Israeli-Palestinian peace deal.

Romney flatly called Jerusalem the Israeli capital in the very first words of his speech Sunday. And he had harsh words yet again for Iran, saying he respected Israel's right to defend itself against what Israel considers an existential threat.

Energy. Green radicals pose threat: RCMP report

There is a "growing radicalized environmentalist faction" in Canada that is opposed to the country's energy-sector policies, warns a newly declassified intelligence report.

The RCMP criminal intelligence assessment, focusing on Canadian waters, cites potential dangers from environmental activists to offshore oil platforms and hazardous marine shipments, representing perhaps the starkest assessment of such threats by the Canadian security community to date.

The report drew a sharp dismissal from Greenpeace — a prominent environmental group singled out in the document — which suggested it could simply be an effort by security authorities to tell the Harper government what it wants to hear.

The Canadian Press obtained a heavily censored copy of the September 2011 threat assessment of marine-related issues under the Access to Information Act.

"Greenpeace actions unnecessarily risk the health and safety of the activists, the facility's staff, and the first responders who are required to extricate the activists," says the report. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Regime, rebels fight for Aleppo

Syria. Opposition calls for international support, regime blames Muslim countries for destruction

Syrian tanks and artillery pounded rebel-held neighbourhoods in the commercial hub of Aleppo on Sunday in a bid to retake control as President Bashar Assad's regime accused regional powerhouses Saudi Arabia, Qatar and Turkey of trying to destroy the country.

Activists say opposition fighters control large swathes of territory across Syria's largest city. The government has been struggling for a week to beat back their assault and stem the tide of recent rebel advances in the civil war.

The head of the main opposition group, the Syrian National Council, called for international help in arming the rebels to face the regime's heavy weaponry, particularly tanks.

"If the international community cannot act, they should support the opposition with anti-tanks missiles and anti-aircraft rockets," Abdel Basset Sida told the Gulf News during a stopover in Abu Dhabi. "We seek international supporters to arm our uprising against the regime."

Saudi Arabia and Qatar have expressed willingness to help fund the rebels and they are believed to be funneling money through Turkey to the opposition, which is using it to purchase arms and equipment.

Syrian Foreign Minister Walid al-Moallem railed against interference by the region's Sunni powers. He accused them of supporting the rebels at the behest of Israel.

"Israel is the mastermind of all in this crisis," he said during a joint news conference in Tehran with his Iranian counterpart.

Apple takes on Samsung in U.S. court

Pending. $2.5-billion US lawsuit over patents for iPhones, iPads

Two tech titans will square off in U.S. federal court Monday in a closely watched trial over control of the U.S. smartphone and computer-tablet markets.

Apple Inc. filed a lawsuit against South Korea's Samsung Electronics Co. last year, alleging the world's largest technology company's smartphones and computer tablets are illegal knockoffs of its popular iPhone and iPad products.

The Cupertino, Calif.-based company is demanding $2.5 billion US in damages, an award that would dwarf the largest patent-related verdict to date.

Samsung counters that Apple is doing the stealing and that some of the technology at issue — such as the rounded rectangular designs of smartphones and tablets — have been industry standards for years.

U.S. District Court Judge Lucy Koh in San Jose last month ordered Samsung to pull its Galaxy 10.1 computer tablet from the U.S. market pending the outcome of the trial.

The case is one of some 50 lawsuits among myriad telecommunications companies jockeying for position in the burgeoning $219-billion market for smartphones and computer tablets.

Rating of Canadian banks drops from stable to negative

Standard & Poor's Ratings Services has cut its outlook from stable to negative on seven Canadian banks, over concerns about unsustainably high home prices and consumer debt levels, according to published reports Friday.

The Wall Street Journal said the New York debt-rating firm cut the credit ratings of Royal Bank of Canada, Toronto-Dominion Bank, Bank of Nova Scotia, National Bank of Canada, Laurentian Bank of Canada, Home Capital Group Inc. and Central 1 Credit Union. The credit rater also reaffirmed the ratings on all seven banks, the Journal said.

However, S&P affirmed its ratings and maintained stable outlooks on five other Canadian banks including Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Bank of Montreal.

Banks began to warn as early as the closing months of 2011 that consumer borrowing would slow as pent-up demand in the housing market becomes exhausted. Meanwhile, low interest rates have been putting pressure on their bottom lines.

Warnings from the banks also suggested that mortgage lending could drop off this year as consumers focus on reducing debt and mortgage lending softens. Canadian officials and economists have repeatedly warned that the housing market is overheated and consumer debt loads are too high.

Consumers have taken advantage of ultra-low interest rates since the recession to heap on low-cost debt. The Bank of Canada decided earlier this week to keep its overnight lending rate — which affects prime rates at banks — at one per cent to stimulate a still fragile economy.

However, Mark Carney, the central-bank governor, has issued repeated warnings that the plan comes with a consequence that could spell economic trouble in times ahead. The most overstretched consumers could find themselves sunk if interest rates rise.

With household debt at an all-time high above 150 per cent of income, the Bank of Canada has declared it the No. 1 domestic risk to the economy.

Spying. Regulators angry Google kept Street View data

After being caught spying on people across Europe and Australia with its Wi-Fi-slurping Street View cars, Google had told angry regulators that it would delete the ill-gotten data.

Google broke its promise.

Britain's Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) received a letter from Google in which the company admits it kept a "small portion" of the electronic information it had been meant to get rid of.

"Google apologizes for this error," Peter Fleischer, Google's global privacy counsel, said in the letter, which the ICO published on its website.

The ICO said in a statement that Google Inc. had agreed to delete all that data nearly two years ago, adding that its failure to do so "is cause for concern."

Other regulators were less diplomatic, with Ireland's deputy commissioner for data protection, Gary Davis, calling Google's failure "clearly unacceptable."

The ICO has the power to impose fines of up to 500,000 pounds (roughly $780,000 US) for the most serious data breaches, though penalties are generally far less severe and can involve injunctions or reprimands.

Trade. Senator wants U.S. to hold up CNOOC-Nexen deal

A U.S. senator wants his government to hold up a Chinese state-owned company's $15.1-billion takeover of Calgary-based Nexen Inc. as a means to press China on its trade policy as the U.S. securities regulator also looks into allegations of insider trading surrounding the deal.

Charles Schumer made his argument in a letter sent Friday to Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner.

Meanwhile on Friday, the Securities and Exchange Commission said it got a court order to freeze assets of Hong Kong traders who bought stock in Nexen before CNOOC announced its plans.

The SEC said Well Advantage Limited and other traders allegedly bought shares in Nexen based on inside information. China's CNOOC announced plans to buy Nexen on Monday.

The SEC said it moved to freeze the assets shortly after Well Advantage tried to sell all of its Nexen stock.

Smartphones. RIM drops from top-five ranking

Canada's own BlackBerry maker Research in Motion has fallen out of the top-five ranking of smartphone makers based on market share, research group IDC said Friday.

RIM has been working to turn around operations after watching its market share eroded by the growing popularity of Apple's iPhone and smartphones running Google's Android operating system.

The company hopes the debut of its BlackBerry 10 operating system and a new line of BlackBerry smartphones will help keep its subscribers from defecting to other devices, particularly in the United States.

Meanwhile, Samsung has extended its lead over Apple in smartphones, in part because its new Galaxy phones came out before Apple updated its iPhone, the research group said.

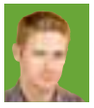
A FANTASTIC RIDE ALONG THE FLOODWAY



URBAN COMPASS
Colin Fast
winnipeg@metronews.ca

So this was it. After years of anticipation, I was finally going to get to ride the new Duff Roblin Parkway Trail, the recreation centrepiece of the floodway expansion project.

My excitement grew as I followed the signs to the staging area next to the floodway gates in St. Norbert. Pulling into the packed parking lot, I noticed more than a few out-of-province licence plates.

While getting my road bike ready, I struck up a conversation with a couple from Quebec. They were on their way to the mountains for a cycling vacation, but just had to stop to check out the country's newest bikeway. They compared it favourably with sections of the Route Verte cycling network in their home province.

As I hit the trail, I saw immediately why they were impressed. The pavement was buttery smooth, and the setting was tranquil. Although I was riding beside one of the greatest engineering achievements in Manitoba's history, it felt like I was in the middle of nowhere.

Rounding the southeast corner of the trail, I spotted the peak of Mt. Roblin rising in the distance. Created from the earth that was excavated to expand the floodway, it's one of the largest man-made hills in the world, and home to the relocated and expanded Springhill Winter Sports Park.

In winter it gives skiers easy access to runs that last longer than 30 seconds from top to bottom. In summer it's proving popular with hikers, who are challenging each other to see how quickly they can scramble to the top, like a local version of Vancouver's famed Grouse Grind.

As I continued down the trail and beyond, I passed groups of rowers and paddlers training on the floodway, the mountain-bike terrain park at the old Springhill site, the whitewater facility at the floodway gates near Lockport and a field of grazing unicorns by Birds Hill.

Oh, wait … I suppose I should have said at the beginning that this was a work of fiction.

So before you grab your snowboard or kayak, you should know that there's no new ski hill, no whitewater park and no water in the floodway. Heck, there isn't even any signage to find the parking lot.

There is a 52-kilometre trail, but it's almost entirely made of gravel, limiting use to mountain bikes or pedestrians. Well, theoretically. I explored several sections of the trail on the weekend and didn't actually find a single cyclist or pedestrian, though there were six ATVs and two trucks riding along the "non-motorized" path.

The unfortunate thing is that all these features (and more) could have been built if the province had a little imagination and ambition. It had a one-in-700-year opportunity to create a massive recreation park that would have been an incredible amenity for Manitobans and a legitimate tourist attraction. Instead, we got a gravel path.

A government with imagination and ambition.... I might have better luck finding those unicorns.

Tough competition for network during the Games

The International Olympic Committee says social-media users caused problems for traditional broadcasters during the first big event of the London Olympics.

Television viewers watching the men's cycling on Saturday got little information about the riders' location and timings on the 250-kilometre road course.

Broadcasters blamed the Olympics Broadcasting Service for the glitch with GPS signals.

IOC spokesman Mark Adams says the broadcasting service was jammed by "hundreds of thousands" of people sending texts, pictures and updates to Twitter and Facebook.

Adams acknowledges that they "should have foreseen that."

The problem appeared to be solved in time for the women's road race on Sunday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Arnold-free Total Recall

New movie. The director discusses updating the Schwarzenegger hit — and reteaming with wife Kate Beckinsale.

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Director Len Wiseman has been working for quite some time on a remake of the 1990 Arnold Schwarzenegger vehicle Total Recall, based on a short story by Philip K. Dick. Of course, getting out from the shadow of a Schwarzenegger hit is no small feat, but Wiseman was up for the challenge. He sat down with Metro at San Diego Comic-Con to talk about his film's all-star cast — including his wife, Kate Beckinsale.

You've been at this production for a while.
It's been two and a half years.

Your wife and star, Kate Beckinsale, has said that living with you has proven that the director gets absolutely no time off.
She's very aware of it. It's one of the downsides. She sees how limited my time actually is, so I've often heard her say that from an actor's point of view, you want to be a little bit more selfish with your own questions and things, but if anything because we're married I find that she doesn't come to me as much as she generally would with another director because generally she feels for how incredibly overwhelmed I am with other things.

So, who would win in a fight between Jessica Biel and Kate Beckinsale?
It's a question that I can't ask. (laughs) To be really honest, if you knew these girls personally, they're very well-equipped with the action, just in terms of ability. And they're both quite vicious when they get into it. It was like having two stunt players on the movie, so we rarely brought a stunt person in for the fight stuff. I don't know who would win. I would really like to see it (laughs). If we just hold some kind of forum, I think it would do very well.

How do you decide which project will take over your life next?
I personally think you have to really, really fall in love with them. The best litmus for me is would I be upset if I passed on this and somebody else did it? I don't think you can go into any project that you feel a little bit iffy about because the minute that you do that — and I have done that before on a project — the amount that it asks of you is so great that you'll just start to break under how overwhelming it is. It's amazing how much adrenaline and passion can keep you awake, keep you going on a project.

In the original Philip K. Dick story, the main character is more of an everyman, something Arnold Schwarzenegger couldn't really pull off.
That was really a focus of what I wanted to do with the character. At least for me, when I saw Total Recall in high school, I was going to go see an Arnold Schwarzenegger movie. I didn't know who Phillip K. Dick was. Arnold is already a superhuman-looking character from the beginning, so I was really wanting to create a character that felt a bit more accessible just as an everyman that turned into a super-spy so that you could have more of that change.

Of course, Colin Farrell is by no means schlubby, though.
No, no. But he was very thin, though. He definitely got himself ripped and in shape for the super-spy aspect of the character. He was a great get because I needed somebody that was vulnerable and somebody that you connect with — but then when it became time to be that superhero kind of character and be tough and daring and all that, that you really bought that with the character, too. I think Colin really does occupy both of those qualities.

Jessica Biel

The actress says that before Justin Timberlake proposed, she didn't expect to ever get married.

- Engaged. The 30-year-old actress told The Associated Press on Friday that she feels wonderful about the engagement. Biel and Timberlake, 31, reportedly became engaged late last year but rarely speak publicly about their relationship. Biel called the engagement "wonderful. It's actually not anything I ever really thought was going to happen."

Romeo and Juliet re-imagined

Comics legend Stan Lee, of Spider-Man fame, together with Paris Kasidokostas and Terry Dougas recently received the Guinness Book of World Records Prize for the largest graphic novel in the world, in a charity gala in Los Angeles organized by the John Wayne Cancer Foundation.

Romeo and Juliet: The War is a sci-fi graphic novel that recounts the story of two superhuman groups of soldiers, who will convert the Verona Empire to the most powerful on Earth.

The Montegues and the Kapulets work peacefully with each other for the destruction of all the threats against Verona. When there is no one else to fight, they turn against each other. Then Romeo, a young Montegue, falls in love with Juliet, a Kapulet girl, and they plan to marry in secret.

But powers beyond their control start to conspire against them, threatening their love and life and the empire of Verona.

The comic was produced by 1821 Comics and Lee's POW! Entertainment.

Lee, Kasidokostas and Dougas were working on the story Superchick for MTV before they came up with the re-telling of Romeo and Juliet.

"We wanted to follow the Shakespeare story, but we transposed it in a comics book, larger than usual, with 155 pages. Our aim was to satisfy the audience in their anticipation of what they were going to read, but we also wanted to create a work of art, that people will hold on to. It was very beautiful, seeing day by day, the creation of all those images. All that we had dreamed of in the two previous years, was getting flesh and blood in the best possible way," Dougas said.

Cook over the line with Batman shooting quip

Dane Cook learned the hard way that a week is probably not enough time to wait before making light of a tragedy. The comedian has taken to Twitter to apologize for making a joke about the Aurora, Colo., movie theater shooting, during which 12 people were killed when a gunman opened fire at a Dark Knight Rises screening.

"So I heard that the guy came into the theater about 25 minutes into the movie. And I don't know if you've seen the movie, but the movie is pretty much a piece of crap," Cook said during his set at L.A.'s Laugh Factory, according to Daily Caller.

"I know that if none of that would have happened, pretty sure that somebody in that theater, about 25 minutes in, realizing it was a piece of crap, was probably like, 'Ugh, f--ing shoot me.'" News of the joke caused an immediate uproar, prompting Cook to post to Twitter, "I am devastated by the recent tragedy in Colorado and did not mean to make light of what happened. I made a bad judgment call with my material last night and regret making a joke at such a sensitive time."

Kristen Stewart apologized for her "momentary indiscretion" with director Rupert Sanders, but it seems there is more to the story than the one-day fling that Us Weekly crashed last week.

According to Leopold Ross — the brother of Sanders' wife, Liberty Ross — the affair began last fall during the filming of Snow White and the Huntsman, which Sanders directed and Stewart starred in. "(Liberty) made some sacrifices for something she thought was worth it, now she knows, right?" Leopold tells UK newspaper The People. "Doubt it was worth it but it's life. It might actually make things better in the long run. She wasn't that happy for a while, but our family is close, she'll be all right." Pattinson, apparently, suspects Kristen is holding back. "Rob wants to have a man-to-man chat with Rupert to find out exactly what happened between him and Kristen," a source tells RadarOnline. "Kristen has already betrayed his trust by cheating, so he can't be sure that she will tell him exactly what went on between her and Rupert. The director has a wife and family to save, so Rob feels like he has nothing left to lose and would be honest with him."

Rob, before you get what's shaping up to be a rough play-by-play, we encourage you to remember this: You are Robert Pattinson and are surrounded by Hollywood starlets with less than nothing to lose. Choose your chat wisely.

But the Duchess of Cambridge herself doesn't seem to have gotten the news, as Middleton was spotted the same day looking slim and sipping wine at an Olympics reception.

Rihanna and Chris Brown have reportedly been keeping their clandestine meet-ups going while on vacation, according to Us Weekly. Brown's boat was later seen pulling up to a mooring alongside Rihanna's. "Rihanna went and partied hard with the guys on their yacht," the source says.

Oh no, my child bullied...

Opinion ...another child with special needs, unknowingly. What would you do?

LINDSAY CROSS

One mom's daughter bullied someone with special needs / THINKSTOCK

My daughter is not a mean-spirited child. I realize that every parent who has ever existed believes this and I don't care. My little girl is a sweet child.

That being said, she's also a kid and there are things that she doesn't understand or hasn't been exposed to yet. And the first time that she encounters something new, there's the possibility that her strong voice or curious nature can lead to difficult circumstances. This was one of those times.

Brenna has attended the same daycare since she was a month old. Her provider normally has about six or eight children at a time of varying ages. And one family that my daughter has grown up with has a daughter with special needs.

I'm not exactly sure what Sarah's specific medical diagnosis is (I've changed her name here). I know that she has physical limitations and wears a back brace.

She's in late elementary school but has the comprehension and speech of a toddler. Sarah is normally a sweet child who has a tendency to invade personal space and misunderstand her own strength, but generally just wants to make people happy.

In the beginning, my daughter simply didn't understand that Sarah was different from other kids. When they were younger, it didn't matter.

Quote

"In the beginning, my daugher simply didn't understand that Sarah was different from other kids. This year, however, she became old enough to question the situation."

This year, however, my daughter finally became old enough to start questioning the situation.

One day, while the kids were playing, my inquisitive girl started asking why Sarah wore a diaper, eventually saying: "You're too big for a diaper. Babies wear diapers, Sarah. You can't wear a diaper unless you're a baby."

Sarah's feelings were understandably hurt. She started crying. Brenna remained confused.

It's hard for children to understand the effect their words can have.

At home, we had a long talk about special needs and disabilities. But about a week later, she asked why Sarah "looked funny" when she ran. She asked why she played with baby toys.

My teacher mother advised me to explain that "everyone has special needs. Some are things that doctors and teachers can help us fix, and some things they can't."

I got ready for our next talk, armed with a new more explanatory strategy. I tried to keep my voice calm, so that I didn't sound angry or condemning. She got impatient with all of the explaining I was doing. She suggested that we just draw her a card to say, "I'm sorry," and call it a day halfway through my planned lecture. I compromised by helping with the card but continuing the conversation as we coloured.

The good news is that my daughter hasn't had problems in a week. We'll have lots more talks about bullying with my daughter. It's a subject that no parent can afford to ignore.

But I have to admit, I never guessed that our first talk would cast my daughter as the aggressor.

Fifty Shades sex has some expecting

Will little Sophia and Jacob morph into baby Christian and Anastasia about nine months from now?

While it's impossible to declare a Fifty Shades of Grey baby boomlet, some moms and moms-to-be attribute their pregnancies to sex inspired by the erotic trilogy that went mainstream early this year.

One night on vacation in Florida was all it took for Betsy Bailey, a labour and delivery nurse, no less, in suburban Chicago. She's expecting baby number six, conceived soon after reading the steamy bondage love story.

"It was like one night alone," she laughed. "We went out to dinner and, you know, a little wine, a little stone crab and a little Christian Grey."

Bailey's No. 6 is due Christmas Day, her 42nd birthday. She and her husband always knew they wanted a big family, but they thought big would be four kids.

"We picked up our fifth in Mexico. He was a vacation baby as well," she joked. "We call him the worm at the bottom of the tequila bottle."

Christian and Ana aren't on her name list, though her great-grandmother's maiden name, Gray, had been a possibility — until now. "Now I don't think I could do it," Bailey said.

Brittany Woodard, 21, in Norfolk, Va., has a six-month-old son, Greyson, whose name has absolutely nothing to do with the books Woodard read while her military husband was away for four months.

New to the spicy genre, the stay-at-home mom wasn't trying for another baby so soon, but she was ready with "new ideas" in the boudoir department when her husband got home. She's due in February.

At BabyCenter.com, a large online community of moms and expectant moms, nearly 150 women have posted that their pregnancies are directly related to more baby-making activity inspired by the best-selling books that have sold 31 million copies in all formats.

That's amore! Potato salad gets the magic Italian touch

This recipe serves 10. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This year, take a basic vinegar potato salad to the next level by adding all the trimmings you'd typically expect on an Italian grinder.

The funny thing is, some people like their grinders with vinegar, some prefer mayonnaise. And you can have it your way with this salad, too. If you'd prefer a creamy version, substitute 1/2 cup mayonnaise for the 1/4 cup of vinegar and 6 tablespoons of oil used for the dressing in this recipe. You'll still need 2 tablespoons of oil for the onions.

1. In a pot, combine sweet potatoes and russet potatoes. Add enough water to cover by 1 inch. Bring to a boil and cook until just tender, about 15 minutes. Drain and spread out on a rimmed baking sheet to cool.

2. In skillet over medium-high, heat 2 tablespoons of olive oil. Add onions and rosemary, then sauté until browned, about 15 minutes. Transfer onions to a bowl, then return skillet to heat. Add chopped salami and sauté until browned at edges and beginning to crisp, about 5 to 7 minutes. Add to onions.

3. In a small bowl, whisk together the remaining 6 tablespoons of olive oil, garlic, vinegar, sugar and mustard. Once the onions, salami and potatoes have cooled, add the potatoes to the onion mixture. Add the provolone and cherry peppers, then drizzle the dressing over everything and gently stir until well mixed and evenly coated. Season with salt and pepper.

4. Refrigerate for at least 2 hours to allow the flavours to meld.

Firing the fallacies

He said, she said. How to overcome gender stereotypes in the office

JULIA WEST
Metro World News

Gender stereotypes can be a severe hindrance to your work. They can also distract from serious issues and affect a person's comfort level. "Women who unwittingly adhere to gender stereotypes are less likely to be taken seriously for their abilities and contributions," explains Lahle Wolfe, About.com's Guide to Women in Business. It's time to stop stereotypes in their tracks and move forward.

Where to begin? "Be excellent," insists Brenda Fiala, Strategy SVP at Blast Radius. "Set for yourself an expectation of delivering excellent work, and strive to do it positively and consistently," she says.

When you're a good employee it gets noticed, regardless of sex. "Your role," explains Wolfe, "is to contribute to the success of the business. If you are not doing that first, you will be hard-pressed to blame gender discrimination."

Don't give stereotypes a reason to survive. ISTOCK

Many professionals stress the importance of an appropriate wardrobe. If you want to be seen as a vital contributor to the company, you'd better look the part. "Dress professionally, not for going out," says Fiala. "Professional attire that you are comfortable in builds confidence." This doesn't mean dress like a man — it means keep it clean.

"To break a stereotype you have to live outside it first," says Wolfe. Observe and understand what stereotypes you may be falling into and make them a thing of the past.

Piercy learns to love golf course on his way to title

Golf. American wins Canadian Open by one shot at course that demanded 'boring golf'

As it turns out, there is nothing boring about a victory at golf's third-oldest championship.

Or a cheque for $936,000 US.

Or a trip to the Masters.

Scott Piercy learned to love Hamilton Golf and Country Club in Ancaster, Ont., just a little bit more Sunday while pulling off a comeback victory at the RBC Canadian Open. The man who entered the weekend bemoaning the "boring golf" he was forced to play on a classic layout ended up being all smiles when the trophy was presented.

"At the end of the week if the score is good, it is exciting," said Piercy. "So I'm pretty excited."

The Las Vegas native closed with a 3-under 67 to edge William McGirt (69) and Robert Garrigus (70) by a shot.

Those men spent the final day locked in a see-saw battle and each of them found their name atop the leaderboard at one point.

Piercy's winning score of 17-under 263 matched the tournament scoring record established by Johnny Palmer at Winnipeg's St. Charles Country Club in 1952.

Goldeyes get bats going early vs. Pheasants

Following a bottom-of-the- ninth suicide squeeze to sneak out a 2-1 victory on Friday and an absolute roller-coaster battle for a 15-9 loss on Saturday, the Winnipeg Goldeyes (39-28) hopped on the bats early Sunday afternoon to capture a 7-3 win and the three-game series victory over the Sioux Falls Pheasants at Shaw Park.

The win keeps the Fish five games back of the North Division-leading Fargo-Moorhead RedHawks, and at least two games up on Kansas City and St. Paul for the American Association wild-card spot.

Travel time

The Goldeyes have Monday off before departing on a six-game road trip through Kansas City and Sioux City.

Winnipeg's Todd Privett (5-4, 3.53 ERA) got the start and captured his fourth win as a Goldeye, allowing three runs (two earned) on seven hits, with five strikeouts in 6 2/3 innings of work.

Brian Beuning came in and shut the door on the Pheasants in relief, lowering his ERA to a sparkling 0.63 while tossing the remainder of the game.

Josh Mazolla did most of the damage to Pheasants starter Mitchell Clegg, going three-for-four at the dish with a three-run home run in the first and a two-run shot in the fifth to put his 2012 dinger total at 10.

Chris Roberson also eclipsed the double-digit home-run mark on Sunday, smacking his 10th of the season in the fourth.

Nobody expected Andrew Luck to be perfect on Day 1. He wasn't. The former Stanford star, drafted first overall, threw two interceptions, one off a tipped ball. Diving pair get Canada on the board

Synchronized diving. Heymans' medal haul reaches historic proportions after bronze win with partner Abel

Her career was forged over more than two decades of training, of six-hour sessions, of 80 dives a day, five days a week.

If Emilie Heymans decides to retire after the London Olympics, she's going out in fitting fashion.

The St. Lambert, Que., diver captured Canada's first medal of the Games with partner Jennifer Abel on Sunday, launching herself into the history books in the process.

The Canadians won bronze in the three-metre synchronized event, a result that makes Heymans the first female diver and first Canadian summer Olympian to reach the podium in four consecutive Olympic Games.

"I couldn't have ever imagined diving in four Games, or being in this position at 30," Heymans said.

Heymans won silver in the 10-metre synchro in 2000, bronze in the same event in Athens in 2004, and a silver in the 10-metre individual event four years ago in Beijing.

Heymans and Abel had silver in their sights Sunday, sitting in second place behind Chinese world champions Minxia Wu and He Zi after the first dive. But they were jostled by television cameras when they were practising on the pool deck before their second dive — a moment Heymans said burst their bubble of focus.

They were noticeably out of sync on the board in Dive 2 — a forward dive in pike position, normally an easy feat for the duo — and fell to fifth place.

"I think both of us, in our head it was like: 'What's going on, what's going on?'" Heymans said. "But after we were able to calm down and come back to the competition and we know it's never over until the last dive."

Heymans and Abel, a 20-year-old from Laval, Que., battled back to win bronze with 316.80 points. Wu and Zi of China led from start to finish to take the gold with an overall score of 346.20. Americans Kelci Bryant and Abigail Johnston captured silver with 321.90.

Heymans, who is also competing in the individual three-metre springboard event in London, will decide her future following the Games.

She said she might dive one more year. It won't be an easy decision for a woman who has trained at least 20 hours a week since she was seven.

"Actually sport is my entire life, it's what I've been doing since I was six years old. I think I'm going to carry this baggage for the rest of my life," she said, meaning it in a good way.

A child of sporting parents — dad Eric played soccer in Belgium, and mom Marie-Paule Van Eyck competed in Montreal's 1976 Olympics as a member of the Belgian fencing team — the diver was originally a gymnast who was told by coaches she was too tall for that sport.

Her parents encouraged her to try diving.

"At first I didn't want to try. I didn't even want to go to the pool because I loved gymnastics, so I didn't want to quit and I hate being wet, I hate being in the water and I'm always cold," she said.

Breaking through

A medal on Day 2 of full day of competition is good news for a Canadian team aiming for a top-12 finish overall, and takes some pressure off the rest of the squad.

- Canada went seven days without a medal in Beijing before the men's rowing pair and wrestler Carol Huynh ended the drought on Day 8 with silver and gold, respectively. Wrestler Tonya Verbeek also added a bronze that day.
- In 2004, Heymans and partner Blythe Hartley's bronze was the lone medal in the opening seven days.

Van Beilen bounced from 100m final in swim-off

Another day, another drama for Canada's swim team at the Olympic Games.

Tera Van Beilen of Oakville, Ont., made her Olympic debut in the 100-metre breaststroke Sunday, and had to compete in one more race than she'd expected.

The 19-year-old had a swim-off against Alia Atkinson of Jamaica late in the evening, when the Aquatic Centre stands had largely emptied, to determine who would claim the eighth spot in Monday's final.

The two women had identical times and finished tied for eighth in the semifinal, requiring a rare head-to-head almost two hours later to solve the deadlock. Atkinson prevailed, dropping Van Beilen to ninth and one spot out of the final in her third race of the day.

"It was mentally hard coming off a race and knowing you had to do it again," Van Beilen said. "I feel blessed for the opportunity to have swum again.

It wasn't how I would have liked it to turn out. I gave it everything I had."

It was the second strange turn of events for Canada in as many days. Ryan Cochrane thought he would race in the men's 400 freestyle final Saturday, but a disqualification of world and Olympic champion Park Tae-hwan in the heats was reversed.

That bumped the Victoria swimmer from the final eight and out of the running for a medal. Cochrane will get another chance in Saturday's 1,500-metre freestyle, which is a distance he won Olympic bronze in four years ago.

Canada emerged from the opening weekend of swim competition still looking for a medal. Their goal is three medals and swimmers in 13 to 15 finals.

Beach volleyball. Canada falls to Britain in opener

Annie Martin of Sherbrooke, Que., and Marie-Andree Lessard of Ville LaSalle, Que., lost their opening preliminary-round match 17-21, 21-14, 15-13 to Britain's Zara Dampney and Shauna Mullin in women's beach volleyball Sunday.

After struggling in the second set, Martin and Lessard appeared to have regained their first-set touch, gaining an 8-5 lead in the third. But the British pair scored six of the next seven points and didn't relinquish the lead again.

"It's unfortunate the match didn't go our way," Martin said. "It was a good match, we had our moments but we made more errors than usual."

On the winning point, Martin's block on a Dampney smash went wide, sending the 15,000-strong pro-British crowd into a frenzy.

Martin and Lessard enjoyed a great start to the match and built a lead as high as six points midway through the first set.

But it was the complete reverse in the second set, in which Dampney and Mullin led from the start.

Swimming. Agnel chases down American star Lochte in final leg to steal gold medal

Ryan Lochte grabbed at the edge of the pool, head down, staring at the water. Michael Phelps glared at the scoreboard, trying to digest the first silver medal of his Olympic career.

Right beside them, the French celebrated.

It was just like 2008 but with the roles reversed.

This time, it was France chasing down the United States — and Lochte, no less — to win another riveting relay at the Olympics.

"We got our revenge," French swimmer Clement Lefert said.

With Phelps looking much stronger than he did the night before, the Americans built a commanding lead over the first three legs of the 4x100-metre freestyle relay Sunday and never really had to worry about the defending world champions from Australia.

When Lochte dove into the water on the anchor leg, he was a half-body length ahead of the field and looking to add another gold to his dominating victory Saturday in the 400 individual medley.

Not so fast.

Or, should we say, not fast enough.

Yannick Agnel, playing the chaser role, sliced through the water and was right on Lochte's shoulder as they made the flip at the far end of the pool. With about 25 metres to go, they were stroke for stroke. But Lochte, who had already competed in 1,200 metres of racing over the first two days, simply didn't have enough left to hold off the towering, 20-year-old Frenchman, one of the sport's real rising stars.

"I gave everything in the last 50 until he cracked," Agnel said. "In the last 10 metres, I saw that he was really cracking."

Agnel touched in three minutes, 9.93 seconds, having gone exactly one second faster than Lochte over the last two laps.

Cycling. Canadian women come up short in 'epic' rain-soaked road race

As Joelle Numainville entered the media zone after Saturday's rain-soaked Olympic women's road race, all she wanted was a towel and a chance to catch her breath.

Clara Hughes arrived seconds later, a dark smudge under her chin like she had been looking up a wet chimney. Her wish list included dry clothing and a chance to get the dirt out of her eye.

And yet after a 140-kilometre trek in miserable conditions, a smiling, shivering Hughes was effervescent.

"It was epic. It was awesome, though," said the six-time Olympian, who placed 32nd on the day.

"There were so many people on the course. We were wondering if people would come out and watch the women's race, it was amazing. I can't say enough about the support in the pouring rain."

Numainville, from Laval, Que., finished 12th despite crashing after losing control trying to avoid another fallen rider with 10 kilometres remaining.

"It was really slippery and it was really hard in the rain," said Numainville, who had to take several gulps of air before she could talk. "I felt like my tire was slipping on a couple of corners. I crashed, it's part of the game.

"It was so hard, but it was good racing."

Basketball. Women's team will have to deal with host Great Britain in its second match

The Canadian women's basketball team won't have the crowd on its side when it returns to the hardcourt at the Basketball Arena on Monday.

Canada will take on host Great Britain in Group B preliminary round play at the London Olympics. Both sides opened the competition with losses to podium contenders.

It was a particularly tough defeat for the Canadians, who dropped a 58-53 decision to powerhouse Russia after letting a 10-point lead slip away in the fourth quarter.

Canada is ranked 11th in the world, but is in a tough group with No. 6 Brazil, No. 8 France, and Australia, which shares the No. 2 position with Russia.

"I honestly feel like we could upset any of them if we played well on the right day at the right time," said head coach Allison McNeill.

The top four teams in each group will advance to the knockout phase. Great Britain is ranked No. 49, but turned in a decent effort in its opener, dropping a respectable 74-58 decision to the Aussies.

Canada is making its first Olympic appearance in basketball in 12 years.
